

Vice Dean's Message

It brings me great joy to welcome you to the 18th Scientific Poster Day, an event that we look forward to each year with pride and anticipation. This special day has become a meaningful platform for celebrating research achievements, fostering scientific dialogue, and inspiring innovation across all levels of our academic community.

In my new role as Acting Vice Dean for Research and Postgraduate Studies, I feel a deep sense of responsibility and commitment to supporting an environment where knowledge grows, and where every researcher and student feels encouraged to explore, question, and contribute.

This day is not merely about presenting research findings—it is about sharing stories, exchanging ideas, and sparking conversations that can lead to impactful collaborations. Each poster holds a unique voice, and every discussion is an opportunity to grow both intellectually and personally.

I invite all participants to make the most of this experience. Be open, curious, and generous with your insights. Let this day be a space for connection, inspiration, and academic pride.

I would like to express my sincere appreciation to the Dean of the Faculty, the organizing and scientific committees, our faculty members, administrative staff, and the Kuwait University Administration for their dedication in making this event a success.

Wishing all of you a day filled with pride, achievement, and new beginnings.
